NON-CREDIT CLASSES:

All classes apart from PhD are 1.5 hours in length. PhD is 2 hours long

Academic English for your PhD (PhD/EdD):

This is a module for students working independently on a research degree (e.g. PhD). The focus will be on practising and developing the language and rhetoric to explain and present your research in both written and spoken formats.

Academic reading and vocabulary development (R&V):

In this module, students can broaden their vocabulary range and develop reading strategies.

Academic speaking and pronunciation (S&P):

A class for students who want to focus on improving their ability to participate in seminar discussions and deliver effective presentations.

Academic English (AE):

A module for all levels of students who want to improve their academic language skills such as reading academic articles and giving oral presentations. Attention is particularly focused on preparing for and writing essays, reports and dissertations.

Grammar for Academic Writing

(GAW): This module looks at different grammatical constructions typically found in different types of academic writing.

Masterclass in 2019

Masterclass is designed for students who may be unfamiliar with study at university level, or who want to update their academic English.

The Masterclass series consists of six 1.5 hour classes. The sessions will be repeated each week:

Every Monday from October 21st - November 25th November, 11 - 12.30, Arundel10212A

Every Friday from October 25th - November 29th, 1.30-3.00, Arundel10212A

All classes are free, and you need only come to the specific sessions that interest you. All students are welcome, but these sessions will be of particular interest to those returning to study or from outside the UK.

Masterclass is run by the University English Scheme (UES). For more information on these or other UES classes please e-mail tesol@shu.ac.uk

Session 1 - Avoiding plagiarism: how to paraphrase and reference correctly.

Monday 21st October 11-12.30 (Arundel10212A) Fri 25th October 2 - 3.30 (Arundel 10212A)

Plagiarism is a very serious issue at university. This session will show you how to avoid plagiarism by paraphrasing the words of others more effectively, and how to correctly reference your sources using the APA referencing system.

Session 2 - Critical reviews & writing critically

Monday 28th October 11-12.30 (Arundel 10212A) Fri 1st November 2-3:30 (Arundel 10212A)

What does it mean to read and write critically? How do you go about critiquing an article by an expert? This class will look at how to improve your critical reading and writing skills.

Session 3 - Literature Reviews - Using other's work in your writing & synthesising effectively.

Monday 4th November 11-12:30 (Arundel 10212A) Fri 8th November 2-3:30 (Arundel 10212A)

Continuing on from Session 3, this class will look at using multiple sources of information to support your points and arguments, and how to incorporate these into your work to maximum effect.

Session 4 - Understanding Assignment & Examination Tasks

Monday 11th November 11-12:30 (Arundel 10212A) Fri 15th November 2-3:30 (Arundel 10212A)

One of the key problems with exams and assignments is that students do not always answer the question asked accurately. This session will focus on analysing exam and assignment tasks quickly and recognising exactly what is being asked. We will also focus on getting the most out of your revision.

Session 5 - Proof-reading - How to check your own work

Monday 18th November 11-12:30 (Arundel 10212A) Fri 22nd November 2-3:30 (Arundel 10212A)

This session will look at how to read your own work critically, both in terms of writing style and content. This is a key skill for those writing essays and reports, and it is also important for those students writing essays in exams.

Session 6 - Reflective writing

Monday 25th November 11-12:30 (Arundel 10212A) Friday 29th November 2-2:30 (Arundel 10212A)

This session will look at how to write reflections - an assignment that is becoming more common in many departments at SHU.
